TOGETHER

by Richard Sennett

“Living with people who different - racially, ethnically, religiously or economically - is one of the most urgent challenges facing civil society today. Together argues that cooperation needs more than good will: it is a craft that requires skill. In modern society traditional bonds are waning, and we must develop new forms of secular, civic ritual that make us more skilful in living with others. From medieval guilds to today’s social network, Richard Sennett’s visionary book explores the nature of cooperation, why it has become weak and how it can be strengthened.”

Roma - Magyar?!
Fehér - Fekete?!
EURÓPAI - SZÍR?!
Nem érdekel, nekünk ők csak emberek

Alapvetően úgy tűnik, hogy a fejlett világ egy jelentős része az embert próbálja ismét a középpontba állítani, ha építészeiről van szó. Építészeiről, amely véd, biztonságot ad és tanít. Keretet ad az embereknek, hogy nyugodtan, békésen és egészségesen élhessenek.

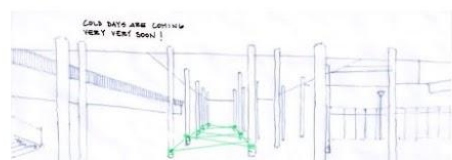

Ehhez képest ma a háború súlytotta országokból menekülőik illetve a gazdasági menekültek egyike sem kapja meg még csak a minimális emberséget sem. Ami ma Magyarországon és Budapesten folyik a migráns ügy kezelésében az szomorú és nagyon kevés. Ez így biztosan nem mehet tovább. Ezeknek az embereknek segítségre van szükségük. Az, hogy ki hogyan segít, azt mindenki maga döntheti el. Szerintünk mindenki abban segítsen, amiben a legjobb. Mi építészekként ezzel a rövid, gondolatébresztő cikkkel szeretnénk felhívni a pillanatnyi helyzetre az építészársadalom figyelmét. Alapvetően embereként kellene, hogy segítsünk, de mi építészek vagyunk, így az otthonteremtésben, fedélkészítésben tudunk a legtöbbet nyújtani. Emellett persze lehet pénzt utalni, lehet menni önkéntesként ételt osztani, lehet posztolni a közösségi média oldalakon. A lényeg, hogy ha mindenki egy kicsit is segít, akkor az nagyon nagy fejlődést tud elindítani!

Aki egyszer életében bármilyen okból elhagyta a hazáját - otthonát, az talán könnyen megérti, hogy ez milyen körülmények között történhet. A nehézségek kell, hogy minden embernek meg kell küzdenie. Ma az is nagy támogatás, ha az embernek nemcsak a keresztségben mindent amitől élni felel kap, az orrási segítségek formájában érez. Mi egy kicsit szízzel, sok posztal és gondolattal szeretnénk segíteni ezekben a nehéz sorsú, de annál erősebb emberek a további útján a céljuk eléréséhez. Egy Ecdorából származó építész ismétlünk a kezdetekről ezekre és ötletekkel járul hozzá, hogy ez a nagyon nehezen megoldható helyzetet is elől haladjon. Gondoljunk külön és együtt, cselekedjünk külön és együtt! A lényeg, hogy mindenki próbáljon akárcsak egy kicsit is hozzáadni a munkához, hogy a kezdeményezés valóban segíthessen.

PROJECT HOME WORK PROTOCOL

Our work protocol will follow subsequent activities as described:

1. TORSHOV SYMPOSIA AND WORKSHOPS

FIRST DAY SYMPOSIA

In a first attempt to explore the grounds of Torshov, we will summon a kickoff symposia that will focus on the experiences from the community. This community will include all participants: refugees, students and invited collaborators, such as academics and experts on the field. We will ask for voluntary testimonies, focusing on notions of home and encounters of domesticity while being in transit. These testimonies will become a body of knowledge from which to extract the content and program of our designs. Topics of discussion will be related to the basic functions of a home: such as eating, sleeping/resting, hygiene, communication, play.

DESIGN-BUILD WORKSHOPS

Parallel to the symposia, we will run design-build workshops for continuous seven days at Torshov refugee site, Transittmottak. The workshops will group multiple teams. Each team will have ten members (eight collaborators and two leaders) and will design and build artifacts that reflect on one of the following basic functions:

DESIGN THEMES

Each workshop will have an assigned theme, given by raffle. Design themes will include:

- sleeping
- eating
- communicating (to people left "home", with each other, with anyone...)
- bathing
- excretion
- playing
- jolly joker

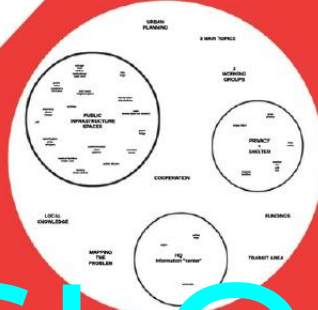

Jolly jokers are functions that are open to be discussed and assigned at the first day symposia by all teams. Other themes may change depending on these discussions.

DESIGN GUIDELINES

Each artifact will be made of a certain maximum amount of material and a certain maximum size (to be transportable in a pickup truck). We will have formal constraints to guide the designs: a defined volume to occupy and a common face for all elements to be later assembled together. All units should be inhabitable. These constraints will ensure that artifacts can be coupled together forming a functional unit. This assembly will be set to be tested at the Transittmottak, will be disassembled (as autonomous artifacts) throughout the city, and later reassembled at the Triennial. [1]

CONSTRUCTION

Teams will have seven days to design and build their artifacts. The organizers will promote educational guidelines amongst workshop leaders. Team leaders will be encouraged to promote democratic work practices amongst all team members. These practices will be discussed throughout the workshop so that all team leaders are equipped with a range of possible methodologies: voting, consensus, creation of sub-teams, self-assignment of distinct roles, target setups, time control, communication, cooperation within the group and with the other teams, project management, etc. The goal is that the process of design and building runs in parallel to that of the construction of the community.

Action from Switzerland added a new photo to the album: Convoy 5: Chios, Greece.
February 1 at 8:13am

These are two containers at the "Kiosk" lookout /landing spot on Chios. This is where cold, wet and scared refugees arrive every other day. The winds can be brutal and newly arrived women and children often have to either change in a secluded spot in the cold / at the front seats of volunteers' cars. But for privacy reasons, some don't, so they end up staying in wet clothes, freezing cold, waiting for the bus, sometimes for hours on end.

One of the containers is also where a group of dedicated local heroes rest when they can. They are the ones who have been there right from the start - way before international volunteers arrived, and rescued countless refugees by guiding boats that are in trouble to safe spots. They hardly sleep, always on the alert and spend most of their time living out of one of these containers waiting for boats.

Together with 2 other donors, Action from Switzerland pooled together our resources to fit these 2 containers with solar panels to provide electricity / heating. We believe this is a viable long-term, sustainable and green solution. It really was a no-brainer for us.

We are very happy to know that in a week or so, women and children are able to change in private, get warm quickly and the local heroes no longer have to pay exorbitant electricity rates.

Thank you for your trust and generosity in making this happen and please keep donating to sustain our work.

Hello, I live in Paris, and I wonder where you are based? Is there any meeting point in Paris?

And do you have projects coming up? I am an architect interested in joining the reflexion and to think about some projects! See you! MATHilde

Dear Mathilde, personally (Bence Komlósi - co-founder) is based in Zürich and Budapest but some meeting sounds great. I was also thinking to do an online meeting! We would fix a date on facebook and could share ideas, thoughts, ...

I think it would be also interesting to organise local events dealing with the topic. I would suggest you to join a public group and ask if there is anyone who would like to have a Paris meeting. I can also post it on the facebook page.

There is no exact project, but there are some conditions, dealing with the topic. The Architecture for Refugees would like to have a group online where you and me can share ideas, questions, ...

Please write these questions on the facebook page.

Have a lovely Monday.

Best,
Bence Komlósi

Okay thank you for your answer Bence & really nice to meet you 😊. I'm not sure to have enough time and energy to carry a project these days, but I'm really interested in the subject and I know other people that do some things in other activities domains for and with the refugees, so I think architects (and I mean myself as well!) should also think about the problematic and experiment things ..? That's why I wanted to join the group, but I don't have for the moment any precised project I have to reflect on the subject ! But maybe a meeting with debates could be interested..?

and I should read the posts of the page. Their seems to have a lot of interesting things to read!

Call for Collaboration by Pieter Billiet!
Brainstorming / design / building / funding!

Pieter Billiet
Today at 3:50pm

HI THERE I'm an architecture student from Belgium, currently working on my master's thesis. My main case study is the refugee crisis in Calais and Dunkirk and I have been actively helping out with building in the jungle for the past 2 months. Now that the second semester has started I plan on working out several small (or big) scale building projects that could be built on the camping sites. As this is a rather ambitious project to do by myself I was wondering if anybody on this page would be interested in helping me out on these projects ? (thinking about them, designing them, building them, funding them, ...) Let me know if anyone is interested ! All the best, Pieter

CatalyticAction Designs Playgrounds for Refugee Children in Bar Elias, Lebanon

"Within humanitarian responses, programmatically, children often become invisible." (Marc Sommers)

The Syrian crisis has forced thousands of families to leave their homes in search of safe places to continue with their lives. Many families have moved to Lebanon, where the UN has raised a series of informal settlements. While effective in providing shelter, they don't provide specific solutions for children, many of whom have had their studies interrupted and don't have public spaces equipped to play sports and interact with other kids.

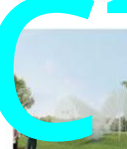

In response to this situation, the architects of CatalyticAction have designed and built a playground in one of the schools developed by The Kayany Foundation and American University of Beirut's Center for Civic Engagement and Community Service, involving children throughout the entire process and allowing the structure to be easily disassembled, transported and either reassembled or repurposed.

Description from the Architects: The Syrian crisis is the world's largest refugee crisis for almost a quarter of a century under UNCHR's mandate (UNHCR, July 2015). It has devastated lives; uprooting families from their homes and forcing them to leave the country to find safety elsewhere. The conflict

In 2013 alone some 1 million people have poured out of Syria to escape a civil conflict that has been raging for over two years. The total number of Syrian refugees is well over 2 million, an unprecedented number and a disturbing reality that has put the host countries under immense infrastructural strain.

Host countries at least have a protocol they can follow, however. UN Handbooks are consulted and used to inform an appropriate approach to camp planning issues. Land is negotiated for and a grid layout is set. The method, while general, is meticulous – adequate for an issue with an expiration date.

Or at least it would be if the issue were, in fact, temporary.

There are millions of people in refugee camps around the Middle East.

Some countries have accepted those from neighbouring nations who are fleeing war and conflict.

But now, the King of Jordan - a country that borders Iraq and Syria - says it's at "boiling point" after allowing 635,000 refugees from Syria.

He says if countries from around the world want Jordan to continue helping refugees then they'll need a lot more help.

There are more people claiming refuge in Jordan, Lebanon and Turkey than anywhere else, including Europe.

Poverty is also a problem in the developed world. This week in our joint Mundus Urbano urban workshop, our group has been working with students from the four universities of the consortium in assisting the Banc dels Aliments of Barcelona in their current efforts to improve the logistics and quality of its operations in response to the needs of the city's poorest residents who are still suffering grave side-effects of the economic crisis in Spain. If you're in Barcelona, you can see them present their analysis and proposals at UIC Barcelona, in front of a jury of experts from the field, including Red Cross.

Deutsches Architekturmuseum to Curate German Pavilion at 2016 Venice Biennale

Deutsches Architekturmuseum (DAM) has been chosen to represent Germany at Venice Biennale 2016 with the exhibition Making Heimat. Germany, Arrival Country. The DAM team - including general commissioner and director Peter Cachola Schmal, curator Oliver Elser, and project coordinator Anna Scheuermann - has already begun to collect examples of buildings that are being transformed for refugees and migrants - from large reception centers to refugee-led bicycle workshops. All work will be presented to the public in early 2016 as "an information pool for planners and policy-makers."

"The current refugee situation is part of a massive worldwide flow of migrants. It leads people from the countryside into cities," says the team. "What are the challenges facing cities with incoming refugees and migrants? Where in Germany are the preferred 'arrival cities' located? How do newcomers become socially integrated citizens? And how can architecture and urban design contribute to this process? Taking as a starting point the hypotheses put forward by the Canadian journalist Doug Saunders in his best selling non-fiction book 'Arrival City', the DAM team, with Saunders as advisor, examines these questions in the exhibition 'Making Heimat' in the German Pavilion. How, in the future, can Germany's "arrival cities", such as Offenbach am Main respond and hypothetically shape the conditions that create a good 'Arrival City'?"

Exhibition and catalogue design will be executed by the Berlin practice Something Fantastic.

Places for People

Due to the refugee crisis, this contribution to the 2016 Architecture Biennale is not limited to the pavilion in Venice but also includes three ongoing projects in Vienna.

More concretely, these teams have been commissioned to work together with NGOs not only to design the conversion of empty buildings into temporary accommodation for people whose asylum claims are being processed but also to accompany these buildings in the longer term.

The objectives of these interventions are to subject the social responsibility of architecture to a reality check, to provide humane places to live for those affected and to present the results in Venice to a broader public.
